1. Yugoslavia is currently engaging in two types of trade in strategic materials with the Satellites. One of these types involves exportation of materials of Yugoslav origin; the second is the utilization of the Yugoslav merchant fleet by other countries engaging in this trade.
2. Minerals from Yugoslavia which are useful for war production are being exported to Rumania and Hungary. The ultimate destination of much of this material, such as copper and lead, is Soviet Russia. This form of trade has been going on since 1951, at which time it was considered smuggling, since it was engaged in by private persons. Since that time it has assumed larger proportions and is now considered as carried on with the consent of the Yugoslav Government.
3. In Hungary, consignments of Yugoslav goods are regularly arriving at Nagykanizsa, Kaposvar, Barcs and Szeged. In Rumania, Yugoslav goods arrive at Timisoara, Orsova and Turnu Severin. Many trains from Yugoslavia are also unloaded in Bulgaria at Slivnitsa and Sofia.
4. The Yugoslavs are also putting their merchant fleet at the disposal of several Western countries to transport goods to Rijeka. From this point, after transiting Yugoslavia, the goods reach Hungary and Czechoslovakia. Yugoslav ships are also widely used for trade between the Satellites and the countries of the Far East.
